* As reported by FSBPT 11/28/2023

** Defined as % of graduates who are initially employed within 1 year of passing the national licensure exam, who were actively seeking a job as a PTA (as reported to the program by program graduates).

***As defined by CAPTE, the percentage of students who matriculated in a given year who graduated on time or with 150% of the expected time. Average attrition varies from year to year for many reasons. Historically, the highest attrition rates occur during the first semester of course work/pre-requisite courses. Percentages supplied based on CAPTE tabulation criteria of graduation rate as per annual accreditation report formula, and this tabulation excludes students who left the program for personal reasons, health reasons, or military deployment.

Acceptance into the PTA Program

Application to the PTA program and meeting the minimum qualifications for application does not guarantee acceptance. Admission into the PTA program is competitive. The PTA program admission process includes careful review of an applicant's overall academic performance history, prior academic success (especially in Math/Science courses), the strength of the applicant's reference letter, the quality of the applicant's essay, and an indication of volunteer or observational hours completed in a physical therapy setting.
